How We Make Up To $800 Per Day In Totally Automated Crypto Profits, With A Secret Strategy that Works Fast and Profits Consistently Whether the Market is Up or Down!

If you seek an honest review of Crypto Code and are curious about its legitimacy, we are here to assist you. This article provides a comprehensive evaluation of Crypto Code, an automated trading software developed by Steve McKay, to determine its legitimacy. Our analysis of Crypto Code indicates that it is not an original platform but rather a replica of Bitcoin Code, which was identified as a fraudulent trading site. We advise against investing in Crypto Code, as it is based on misleading articles that are endorsed by the company to create a façade of legitimacy.

We have received numerous complaints regarding Crypto Code, prompting us to conduct a more thorough investigation. The issues reported can be categorized into two primary concerns: a segment of individuals claims that there is a complete absence of software, whereas another group is experiencing difficulties in withdrawing their funds. Similar to other fraudulent platforms, Crypto Code operates as a quick wealth generation scheme, enticing users via its affiliate programs and collaborations with media agencies. Commission fees are allocated to brokers for promotional activities, reflecting a revenue-sharing model commonly employed by numerous gambling platforms.

To assess the validity of this platform, we did not rely solely on customer complaints. Instead, we invested 250 euros and were assigned a broker called “Online Trading,” located in St. Vincent and the Grenadines, a jurisdiction that raises concerns regarding its legal standing. Furthermore, the broker was prohibited from offering financial services to the client. To eliminate any uncertainty, we have provided all the necessary evidence and documentation to substantiate this fraudulent activity. Prior to investing your funds in Crypto Code, we recommend that you carefully consider our comprehensive review and make an informed decision.

It is evident that these individuals possess considerable intelligence, employing reverse psychology to persuade consumers to invest in their fraudulent trading system.
